

Declarations of Interests required by the BHS:

Definitions:

A personal pecuniary interest involves a personal payment. The main examples include the following.

- Any consultancy, directorship, royalty agreement, position in or work for a healthcare industry that attracts regular or occasional payments in cash or in kind.
- Any fee-paid work commissioned by a healthcare industry for which the individual is paid in cash or in kind.

A non-personal pecuniary interest involves payment or other benefit that benefits a department or organisation with which an individual is associated, but which is not received personally. The main examples include the following.

- The holding of a fellowship endowed by the healthcare industry.
- Any payment or other support by the health industry that does not convey any pecuniary or material benefit to an individual personally but that might benefit him or her. Examples include:
 - i) a grant from a company for the running of a unit or department with which a member is associated
 - ii) a grant or fellowship or other payment to sponsor a post or member of staff in the unit with which a member is associated
 - iii) the commissioning of research or other work by, or advice from, staff who work in a unit with which the member is associated

An individual covered by this Code is under no obligation to seek out knowledge of work done for, or on behalf of, the healthcare industry within the departments with which they are associated if the relationship is distant such that the member would not normally expect to be informed of that relationship.

A personal family interest relates to the personal interests of a family member and involves a current payment to the family member. The main examples include the following.

- Any consultancy, directorship, position in or work for a healthcare industry that attracts regular or occasional payments in cash or in kind.
- Any fee-paid work commissioned by a healthcare industry which is paid in cash or in kind.
